REMARKS

Claims 1-24 remain in the application. The actions taken are in the interest of expediting prosecution and with no intention of surrendering any range of equivalents to which Applicants would otherwise be entitled in view of the prior art. Moreover, the amendment or cancellation of claims herein is without prejudice to pursuing claims of different scope by way of continuing Application. Reconsideration of this application is respectfully requested.

I. STATUS OF CLAIMS

1. Claims 1-4, 6, 8-18 and 20-23 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sonti et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,108,540) in view of Gentry (U.S. Patent No. 6,453,162).
2. Claims 5 and 19 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sonti in view of Gentry and in further view of Daniels (U.S. Patent No. 6,058,301)
3. Claim 7 stands rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sonti in view of Gentry and in further view of Sistanizadeh et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,681,232).
4. Claim 24 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

II. SUMMARY OF INVENTION

The present invention pertains to communication subscriber services and more particularly to maintenance and storage of subscriber (user) service profiles.

(1) Whether claims 1-4, 6, 8-18 and 20-23 are made obvious by Sonti in view of Gentry under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

(2) Whether claims 5 and 19 are made obvious by Sonti in view of Gentry in further view of Daniels under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

(3) Whether claim 7 is made obvious by Sonti in view of Gentry in further view of Sistanizadeh et al. under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

IV. ARGUMENTS

35 U.S.C. § 103

The Office Action states that claims 1-4, 6, 8-18, and 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 for allegedly being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,108,540 issued to Sonti et al. ("Sonti") in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,453,162 issued to Gentry ("Gentry").

The Office Action alleges that Sonti teaches the elements of independent claim 1, except for a personal HLR not located with the telecommunication service provider and a link to an OSS of the telecommunication service provider for obtaining services. Additionally, the Office Action alleges that Sonti teaches the elements of independent claim 13, except for a processor means including the HLR, said processor means operating independent of the telecommunications service provider and said processor means coupled to said telecommunications service provider for communication and the elements of independent claim 21, except for an HLR processor within a particular user and said service provider coupled to said processor means, said network HLR pointing to said personal HLR. The Office Action further alleges that Gentry teaches the aforementioned deficiencies of Sonti. The Applicants respectfully disagree.

Sonti teaches a method for allowing subscribers of a telecommunications network to change easily between sets of desired features where a user dials a special code to change a profile containing different set of features for different users of the mobile station or for different times of day or geographic areas. Gentry teaches a method and system for provisioning a wireless component over an internet protocol network where a request to modify information in a location register is received from an input device coupled to an internet protocol network, the request is converted into an HLR access message, the HLR access message is sent to the location register, and information is modified in the location register in response to the HLR access message. However, nowhere do Sonti or Gentry disclose a personal home locator register located in a processor of a user, as recited in independent claim 1 and independent claim 21. Additionally, nowhere is there any mention of a processor means including the home location register, said processor means operating independent of the telecommunication service provider and located with a particular subscriber, as recited in independent claim 13. In fact, the Office Action alleges that Sonti teaches a user having access to an HLR function (which contains a processor), but admits that Sonti "does not limit the scope/design of the patent by dictating where certain hardware is located and/or how it must be connected." However, Figures 1, 5, 6 and 7 of Sonti clearly teach that HLR (74) is located separately from users, who are at mobile stations (30). Moreover, Gentry does not mention any processor, let alone a personal home located register located in a processor of a user. In fact, Figure 2 of Gentry clearly teaches and illustrates that HLR is NOT located in a processor of a user, since the user is at personal computer (48) and HLR (17) is located separately from personal computer (48) across the Internet (46). So it is clear that both Sonti and Gentry teach HLR as being remote from a user. Therefore, both Sonti and Gentry teach away from Applicants claims. Teaching away is an important indicium of nonobviousness. U.S. v. Adams, 383 U.S. 39, 148 USPQ 479 (1966). Teaching away is the antithesis of the art suggesting that the person of ordinary skill go in the claimed direction. In re Fine, 5 USPQ2d 1596, 1599 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

Examiner alleges that by Sonti and Gentry not disclosing or limiting where hardware is located, that the personal HLR/database could be located either remotely or with the user. Applicants respectfully disagree. As shown above, both Sonti and Gentry teach that HLR is located separately from a user. Moreover, Applicants DO claim a limitation on the location of HLR - that HLR is located in the processor of a particular subscriber or user (independent claims 1, 13 and 21). Even if Sonti and Gentry did not limit the location of the HLR (which Applicants believe they do), it is respectfully pointed out that the Examiner cannot read this limitation into Sonti and Gentry.

The rejection in question can only be based upon a hindsight reconstruction enlightened by Applicants' own disclosure. In other words, even if, as alleged by the Examiner, Sonti and Gentry do not teach a particular location of HLR, it is improper hindsight for the Examiner to read the limitations on the location of HLR, as claimed by Applicants, into the teachings of Sonti and Gentry.

The Examiner is well aware that the three necessary criteria for establishing a prima facie case of obviousness include 1) some suggestion or motivation, either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art, to modify the reference or combine reference teachings, 2) a reasonable expectation of success, and 3) the prior art reference or references must teach or suggest all the claim limitations. Accordingly, as Sonti and Gentry fail to disclose, either explicitly or inherently, at least the above-noted elements of claims 1, 13, and 21 and the Examiner has failed to provide such an explicit or inherent disclosure of this element, it is respectfully submitted that the rejection of these claims and the claims that depend therefrom is improper and the Applicants request withdrawal of the § 103 rejection.

The Office Action states that claims 5 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 for allegedly being unpatentable over Sonti and Gentry and in further view of U.S. Patent No. 6,058,301 to Daniels ("Daniels").

Claim 5 depends from claim 1 and claim 19 depends from claim 13. Accordingly, these claims rely on the arguments presented above. Additionally, Daniels does not make up for the deficiencies of Sonti and Gentry. Namely, nowhere does Daniels disclose a personal home locator register located in a processor of a user, as recited in newly amended claim 1. Additionally, nowhere is there any mention of a processor means including the home location register, said processor means operating independent of the telecommunication service provider and located with a particular subscriber, as recited in claim 13. Thus, it is respectfully submitted that the rejection of claims 5 and 19 is improper and the Applicants request withdrawal of the § 103 rejection.

The Office Action states that claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 for allegedly being unpatentable over Sonti and Gentry and in further view of U.S. Patent No. 6,681,232 to Sistanizadeh ("Sistanizadeh").

Claim 7 depends from claim 1 and relies on the arguments presented above. Additionally, Sistanizadeh does not make up for the deficiencies of Sonti and Gentry. Namely, nowhere does Sistanizadeh disclose a personal home locator register located in a processor of a user, as recited in newly amended claim 1. Thus, it is respectfully submitted that the rejection of claim 7 is improper and the Applicants request withdrawal of the § 103 rejection.
